

How to say “auch” and “auch nicht” in English

In German, we can say “auch” and “auch nicht” very simply:

- Ich kann das auch.
- Ich kann das auch nicht.

In English, “auch” and “auch nicht” are said with different constructions:

Option [Möglichkeit] 1

Positive statement

E	My sister was listening to music all evening	I did, too .
		I also did.
D	Meine Schwester hörte den ganzen Abend Musik	Ich auch .

To say “auch” we can use the words “too” and “also”, note that they are put in different positions in the sentence.

Negative statement

E	My brother couldn't understand the president's speech	I couldn't understand it either .
D	Mein Bruder konnte die Rede der Präsidentin nicht verstehen	Ich konnte sie auch nicht verstehen.
E	My brother couldn't understand the president's speech	I couldn't either .
D	Mein Bruder konnte die Rede der Präsidentin nicht verstehen	Ich auch nicht .

To say “auch nicht” we can use “not” + “either”. Note how the sentences are constructed with a normal negation [Verneinung] and the “either” at the end of the sentence.

Option 2

Positive statement

E	My sister was listening to music all evening	So was I.
D	Meine Schwester hörte den ganzen Abend Musik	Ich auch .

Another way of saying “auch” is using “so”. In this construction, the verb comes before the subject, so their positions are inverted [umgedreht] compared to a normal sentence. That’s why this construction is called inversion [Vertauschung].

Negative statement

E	My brother couldn’t understand the president’s speech	Neither could I.
		Nor could I.
D	Mein Bruder konnte die Rede der Präsidentin nicht verstehen	Ich auch nicht .

Another way of saying “auch nicht” is using “neither” or “nor”. In this construction, too, the verb comes before the subject. So this is also an inversion.
