

Interview with Daniel

Names of interviewers: Felix, Aurelie, Maximilian

Transcript (written version of the audio track)

Reporter: Are the people friendly there?

Daniel: Yes, I think so. They are just like us.

Reporter: Do you want to visit the US again? If Yes: Why?

Daniel: Yes, because you know, all the big cities and there are lots of nice people. The big fast food shops on the streets are cool.

Reporter: How is the food there?

Daniel: It's nice but you can't eat it for three weeks. In the first week, it was okay and I ate the fast food, but the second week, i had enough of it.

Reporter: How does the exchange work?

Daniel: You have to sign up that you want to go there one year before the exchange. The teacher from our school contacts the teacher from the exchange school and they match the students that will participate at the exchange. You have to apply for a visum.

Reporter: Did you think it was a good experience?

Daniel: Yes I think so because you get to know all different. They are different than in Germany. The food, the people and the school system is different like in Germany.

Reporter: Do you want to live there?

Daniel: No, because every thing is too big. I'm happy that I live in a small town (Steinenstadt). Because you have your friends and there are no bad things in your town.

Reported version

We asked if the people are friendly there and he answered that he thought so and that they're just like us.

Then we asked him if he wanted to visit the US again, and if yes, why. He said yes, he wanted to visit the US again, because there are many big cities and a lot of nice people. He said that the big fast food shops were cool as well.

We asked how the food was there and he said that it's nice, but he wouldn't eat it all the time.

Then we asked him how the exchange worked and he explained to us.